Growing economy a complex challenge

Jenn Watt
Editor

The county's growth will depend on a multi-faceted approach; tourism promotion, of course, but also careful protection of the environment, better support of local industry and creating a distinct "sense of place."

County Warden Carol Moffatt told an audience of politicians, businesspeople and community boosters that in order to move the Haliburton Highlands into its next phase of growth, stakeholders had to take charge and "up their game."

If people don't improve customer service

"then we will all fail," Moffatt said at the annual warden's breakfast at the Stanhope Firefighters' Hall on June 5.

Moffatt, who is reeve of Algonquin Highlands, will hold the position of warden for another six months.

Parents for French

Parent Dan Chumbley, 37, works with Corin Gervais, 8, to get the answer in Junior Pictionary at the Canadian Parents for French (CPF) Games Night event at J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School in Haliburton on Thursday, May 30. Participants of all ages used their conversational French during a period of games. This was the fourth games night this year and encourages French immersion students and core French students. The event was free for CPF members and $5 for non-members. The CPF membership helps to fund events such as the guest appearance of musician Mike Ford this past year.

Duchene and Hodgson to host golf tournament

Pinestone Resort and Conference Centre has announced that Matt Duchene, Cody Hodgson and friends will host the Minden Flood Relief Golf Tournament at their facilities in Haliburton on June 15. Duchene and Hodgson both born in Haliburton County have rallied to generate a SOLD OUT event in just 24 hours.

In the last few weeks of April and into early May parts of the Haliburton Highlands, in particular the township of Minden Hills, found itself a victim of unprecedented flooding that severely damaged both businesses and houses in the area resulting in $3.9 million in damage to private homes.

While it was indeed "lucky" that there were few injuries and no lives lost, the real tragedies were social and economic. Many families have been forced from their homes and, because flooding is considered "an act of God" often times insurance coverage is limited for those living in what is considered a flood plain.

"Because of this, our team at Pinestone Resort in partnership with key members of Haliburton County, have come together to help our neighbours with various fundraising initiatives to assist the flood victims in rebuilding their homes and their way of life," said Matthew Phillips general manager, Pinestone Resort and Conference Centre. As an incentive to continue with this type of support, the province has said it will provide up to $2 for every $1 raised. "This means our community will need to raise approximately $1.3 million to coincide with the government's flood relief program," said Phillips.

"I am extremely proud of my involvement with the tournament and feel honoured lending my support to a great cause," said Matt Duchene, Colorado Avalanche. "We hope that we can help raise awareness to the needs of the Minden Flood Relief victims and their families."

Having already been featured on CBC's Hockey Night in Canada with Ron MacLean and Don Cherry along with Prime Time Sports host Bob McCown on Sportsnet 590 The Fan, the event has reached a level unimaginable by the organizing committee in a very short time period.

New tourism director a 'real dynamo'

Despite the one-year term limit, the warden had a lengthy list of to-do items including improving the county's social media presence, protecting the environment and attracting new visitors and residents.

While many lament the county's status as one of the poorest in Ontario, Moffatt said she focuses on the unique, talented people the area has attracted.

"Haliburton Highlands is ripe with creativity," she said.

At the breakfast Moffatt referred to the new tourism director whose name hadn't yet been revealed, calling her a "real dynamo."

On Friday, the county put out a press release announcing Amanda Ranson had been chosen from among 74 applications for the position.

"We're very excited to welcome Amanda to the county team. Her knowledge and professionalism will be an asset and we look forward to her extensive experience taking us in a wonderful new direction," Moffatt said in the county release.

Ranson has worked for The Globe and Mail, Rogers Communications and most recently Cohn & Wolfe, a PR agency, as vice-president of brand management.

Moffatt also took time to discuss the housing survey the county had conducted, which revealed that 28 per cent of the population is seniors (compared to the province's 14.6 per cent). She said the projection is that Haliburton County will eventually have 41 per cent seniors.

"We're becoming Elliot Lake," she said, joking that the weather is better in Haliburton.

Seniors are one group that will need more housing in the years to come, along with low income individuals and new residents.

While surveys and studies can seem like a waste of time, Moffatt argued that you can't expect people to move up to an area that doesn't yet have adequate housing.

She also pointed out that students at Fleming College in Haliburton do not have a residence building and that even greater demand for seniors housing will pressure the Highlands as the provincial government puts its resources into aging at home programming.

On the topic of construction, the warden pointed out that a special meeting for the industry had been held in February with more than 40 construction workers attending.

The focus for that industry should be encouraging people to use local suppliers and making them aware of what exists in Haliburton County.

Other highlights from a government perspective include successful Doors Open events in each municipality, a new county website, the pond hockey championships, a road map for motorcycle tourists, the upcoming Pan Am Games at Minden's Wild Water Preserve and the 2015 senior winter games.

Moffatt also took time to point out that customer service isn't as good as it should be.

Haliburton Highlands is ripe with creativity.

— Warden Carol Moffatt

The Highlands are being "out-served" by neighbouring communities, she said, but questioned how the problem could be remedied.

It's "like telling someone they need to use deodorant," she said - an uncomfortable and potentially alienating experience.

Nearing the end of the event, chamber of commerce board member Brad Duckworth asked Moffatt what was happening with economic development in the county.

Duckworth said he'd like to see a plan in place for the county and that customers at his business, Bank of Montreal, often asked about what Dysart is doing to grow the economy.

Moffatt explained that when former tourism and economic development director Bob Smith retired, the county divested the economic development part to the lower-tier municipalities.

"Probably not the best idea," she said, but that's why there was no centralized control over planning.

She pointed out that other than Algonquin Highlands, the other three municipalities did engage in structured economic development planning.

Longtime members honoured at hospital auxiliary AGM

Jenn Watt
Editor

About 50 people came out to Rhubarb restaurant in Eagle Lake last week for the annual general meeting of the Haliburton Hospital Auxiliary and to celebrate those who have dedicated decades to the organization.

In a year, the organization brought in more than $50,000 for the hospital, purchasing a wide range of items from vital signs monitors to new lighting.

There was an air of celebration as committee chairpersons stood up to reveal recent fundraising feats including $622 at Haliburton's Home and Cottage Show, $900 in profit from the geranium sale and $560 at the Independent grocery store over the May long weekend.

But the most applause came from the time president Tracey Lear took at the end of the lunch to thank those who had made "exemplary commitment" to the auxiliary.

Marlene Taylor, Doris Laine, Joan Stinson, Julie Graf, Lil Haight and Mary Hastings were all honoured by Lear with life memberships to the auxiliary.

While the organization was presented with a list of needed items, Haliburton Highlands Health Services hasn't yet prioritized them.

So far, the auxiliary has committed to buying two industrial dishwashers for the hospital (one of which was covered off by a $15,000 donation specifically for the machine) and memory boxes for the long-term care unit are on the way.

The auxiliary hopes to pay for furnishings for a second palliative care suite, however, ministry approval at the pro-

Forever in our memories: Creighton Feir

That magic feeling

IT'S A COMMON phrase to hear from new residents in the Haliburton Highlands: "there's a magic about this place."

It's so common that when reporters at the paper hear the phrase it is often left out of stories for sounding too cliché.

But despite sounding overly sentimental, feeling a certain Haliburton "magic" is a common experience for many.

It's that untenable thing that makes the Highlands attractive to newcomers, what brings back visitors year after year and, ultimately, what makes people invest in property, seasonal or year round.

At the warden's breakfast event last week, Warden Carol Moffatt spoke extensively about taking the Haliburton appeal out into the world and growing our population.

Taking that magic and using it. Moffatt surveyed the packed breakfast tables at the Stanhope Firefighters' Hall June 5 and found that save for two people, everyone there had come from away.

Undoubtedly drawn by that feeling you can't put your finger on, entrepreneurs, public servants, non-profit workers and journalists came here to be a part of what she lovingly called the "Island of Misfit Toys."

It sounds insulting at first, but Moffatt explained that the Highlands have an eclectic collection of unique personalities, creative types and characters.

It's part of what we have to sell the world and what should be harnessed to make this place succeed.

At the breakfast, Moffatt also mentioned a certain "dynamo" – Amanda Ranson – who was recently hired to become Haliburton County's tourism director.

She has a daunting task ahead of her.

Despite the landscape, the arts, the incredible facilities, festivals and community, Haliburton hasn't yet grown to its full potential.

There are still those who don't know this place who should and other small towns have been more successful in using their special something for economic gain.

Funding and focus have hindered the process at points along the way.

The positive in this, and it's a big positive, is that Haliburton is starting from a place of strength.

That "magic feeling" isn't something that can be created; you either have it or you don't.

And Haliburton has it.

The raw materials for success are here (the place, the people, the energy); we just need the right tools.

Generosity

I RECENTLY DID A yoga class where the teacher encouraged all us of to think about applying generosity towards our body instead of being forceful in every pose.

She encouraged us to be soft and smooth in our transitions between postures. It was actually a very challenging class doing many binding poses (wrapping arms around our bodies in lots of twisty ways) and she offered each pose as a context or contradiction for us to be in, and then offer softness.

The theme of her class was how much can we soften and find the inner sweetness when we are presented with very difficult situations (in this case the yoga poses, but also in life challenges that we all face day to day). It was a great class and really made me think about how I tend to contract, resist, avoid or shut down when I'm in a "bind." She encouraged us to stand our ground in the difficult pose, turn inside and find some space and then soften, listen and forgive over and over again.

It is always fascinating to me when I'm working on something that is so physical and yet is inspiring and challenging in such an emotional and personal way.

What I love is when I am able to recognize myself in some bind in my life, and instead of becoming forceful I can soften and offer generosity as opposed to force and still stand my ground.

I've been in awe of all the fundraising events that people have creatively and generously done to help raise money to support people affected by the flood in Minden.

Out of such a difficult situation, such goodness and support and generosity has been offered again and again and again.

That is the light in a very dark situation.

That is softening into what is and finding solutions and being helpful.

Everyone who has helped and supported by leading or attending or donating should feel so proud of themselves. It all makes a difference.

Gail Holness, from Holness Yoga (www.holnessyoga.com) is using her creative and generous spirit to lead a "Green Yoga Class" on Saturday, June 29 at her studio in the rocking little hamlet of Donald. Gail is inviting people to bike or hike or carpool to her place for 9:30 a.m. to do some yoga and have refreshments.

Holly Bishop from SUP North will be there with some paddleboards for people to try on the river. It will be a great morning to have some fun and raise some funds for an important cause. Hope to see you there.

Great walls

I PAILED YET ANOTHER fist-sized stone on it and surveyed my creation. Below me, as far as the eye could see – provided you were extremely nearsighted – was a wall.

Far be it from me to call it a great wall, but let's just say that this marvel of engineering, which ran a full 25 feet, was almost two stones high and, in some places, almost two deep.

I looked up into the sky and waved, knowing full well that, even as I did so, a passing satellite was squinting at this new monument to man's talent for poorly done yard projects.

"Why are you doing this again?" Jenn asked.

"This wall will edge the periwinkle garden and divert rain water from flowing along the house," I said.

But even as I spoke those words, Jenn and I knew that this was about more than containing a plant with a funny name.

It was about making history and leaving a timeless legacy.

Yes, I was in the midst of creating a great wall that would put the one in China to shame.

As she left, I mumbled, "In time, people will refer to this as The Great

Steve Galea

Loon Tales

Wall of Haliburton."

Admittedly, right now it is probably more in the little wall class. But that will soon change.

You see, every time I walk the dogs down the road – and I do this twice a day – I bring home one rock to add to the wall.

It's back breaking toil to be sure – once, I noticed moisture on my forehead which lab testing later determined was actual sweat.

I first came up with the idea after thinking about tourism in Haliburton County.

That's when it occurred to me that other places build successful tourism campaigns around historic monuments that are almost unbelievable in scope.

China has its Great Wall. Egypt has its Great Pyramid. Niagara Falls has its Great Parking.

And now central Ontario is on the verge of having something great and unbelievable too.

The Great Wall of Haliburton, as it is sure to be known, will probably one day wind all the way around the periwinkles and reach dizzying heights of two feet. I know it doesn't seem like much but if we spend a bit of time promoting it we might be able to divert a tour bus or two.

Look, at least I'm trying.

Right now you are probably asking what makes this wall any more interesting or unbelievable than the Great Wall of China?

The answer is simple. The Great Wall of China, which was built over centuries, had a purpose. It was meant to keep out the Mongols and provide a well-defined border for a great kingdom.

My wall, on the other hand, does none of these things.

Instead it is a testament to the things a man will do outside of the house to avoid doing things like vacuuming or cleaning up the basement. As for the unbelievable part, need I remind you that this wall caused a writer to exude sweat?

I'm not much on the marketing side of things, but even I can see that this has some tourism potential.

After all in a thousand years or so, people will look upon it as a strange monument built with great toil for some mysterious and unknown purpose. Tourists eat that stuff up.

I figure it'll be ready in 4,000 more dog walks.

In the meantime, let's just hope the Mongols don't decide to attack.

Thanks to Haliburton friends

To the Editor,

We have followed the sad news of the flooding in Minden and area. After reading about the flood fundraisers in the Echo (May 28), we decided to drive from Bowmanville (hard to believe it's been nine years since we moved from Haliburton). Thanks to the Echo we were informed about the H.A.V.E. (Help A Village Effort) event on Sunday, June 2 at Wintergreen Maple Syrup Barn (to help provide safe, clean drinking water for villages in India, and ironically a portion of proceeds to Minden Flood Relief – lots of water; wrong places). We then zipped over to a benefit concert at St. George's Anglican Church, Haliburton (which included outstanding musical performances, as did the H.A.V.E. event).

We hate to see the flood damage, but love the spirit of "love your neighbour".

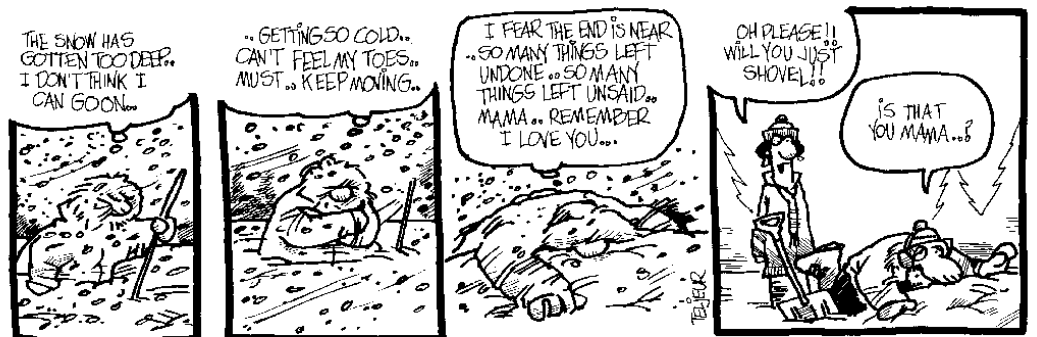

A caring community reflected well in your newspaper.

We are thankful for our Haliburton friends and we keep praying for those whose homes and businesses were flooded.

Rev. Christopher and Dianne Greaves

P. S. May I add that when we moved from Haliburton, a one-year subscription to the Echo was paid for as a parting gift by my fellow pastors in the Haliburton Ministerial Association, two of whom are still in the area, Pastors Brian Plouffe and Harry Morgan.

Thrill of a ride

To the Editor,

Well, people, despite the crazy weather, you managed to give 87 kids the thrill of a ride in a small airplane.

How does this happen? It takes a dedicated group of pilots: Paul Robinson, Paul Martin, Hannu Halminen, Bob Ashleigh, and Rick Whitley. They were marshaled by Brent Walker. Tim Stain was ready to fly up from Toronto to help but the weather prevented that. The kids must be registered and certificates processed by Carol Sharpley, Jacqui Martin and Sherrie Ashleigh.

Barry Wilhelm and Craig Worsfold marshalled kids and encouraged them before flights and even adjusted computer printing.

Kids and parents had to be fed by the ever-reliable Marlene Maxwell and her crew of Una and Sharon.

Council gave a discount on gas prices. The local papers, radio and schools help spread the word. Over 1.7 million kids have participated in the YE program since its inception in 1992. We started in 1993. Most of the kids flown last weekend weren't even born when we started flying YE kids.

So thanks to all.

As always, "the little airport that could" – did.

More physio services a big win for seniors

To the Editor,

Whenever PC MPPs use Enron accounting to create their latest "outrage," the Ontario Liberal government must be doing something right.

Premier Kathleen Wynne and Health Minister Deb Matthews have actually figured out something remarkable.

They've found a way to increase physiotherapy, falls prevention, and exercise services to at least 200,000 more seniors each year – while finding savings that can be reinvested in our health care budget.

Just by cutting out the middleman, more or less.

Millions have been spent on avoidable middleman costs for these services. So now that money will be saved and spent on other health care areas that need it.

Most patients probably won't notice much difference – they'll still continue to get the care they need. And the budget for these services will even increase by approximately $10 million – to $156 million – to accommodate all the new people.

To everyone but PC MPP Laurie Scott, that's clearly a big win.

It's no secret that the Ontario Liberal government's plan to increase the delivery of home care services to seniors will not only help seniors by having more services come right to them, but it will also take pressure off the health care budget and ensure the vitality of our public health care system for years to come.

People who know and use the health care system understand and support this. But unfortunately the PC party do not.

Instead, Laurie Scott and the PCs are pushing a wrong-headed agenda to slash public services by gutting home and community care, and forcing seniors to travel to 30-odd regional hospitals. There wouldn't even be a regional hospital in Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock: people would have to travel all the way to Peterborough.

No doubt lots of middlemen would profit, and there would be plenty of tax cuts for the rich.

So don't be fooled.

Rather than waste everyone's time by using phony math, perhaps PC MPP Laurie Scott should focus her efforts on trying to make the minority government work, praising these new home care programs which save costs, and actually reading provincial budgets before deciding to vote against them.

What the people of Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock deserve is a MPP who isn't preoccupied with manufacturing opposition stunts.

Liberal candidate Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock

Traumatic event puts life in perspective

It is the little things that you take for granted each day that suddenly have new value when you experience a traumatic event.

It was a Monday, not unlike any Monday in early June, although a little cooler than we would have liked for this time of year. I watched as my grandson (Austin McGillion) make his way up the drive, signaling the close of another school day. I greeted him as he came in the door, pointed him in the direction of his snack and inquired, "How was your day?" He replied, "It was a good day." I asked if he would mind mowing the front when he finished his snack, he grumbled a little, but said "Yeah, OK, I will." I suggested he check the gas because I thought it was getting low and he said he would.

About 15 minutes later he headed to garage, I heard the doors being opened and the droning sound of the lawn mower soon followed. I glanced out the window and saw him making his way to the front yard. I stood at the living room window and watched as he mowed up and down the bank closest to road, I was proud of the job he was doing. I heard the lawn mower quit and I looked to see what was happening and saw Austin making his way to the garage. "Oh, he ran out of gas," I thought. Then I heard the lawn-mower start up and back he went to the road to finish his job. I thought to myself, as I turned away from the window, perhaps I should tell him to try a different angle. Then I saw him go down the bank, the lawn mower quit and the next sound I heard was Austin screaming. Instinctively I ran for the closet and grabbed a towel, then my purse, car keys and his wallet; all in one fell swoop. I ran out the door and he had already managed to make it a third of the way up the drive hopping on one foot. I told him to stop moving, wrap his foot in the towel I handed him and wait for me to get the truck while his screams echoed around and around in my head. I ran up the hill to the top of the drive, started the truck and pulled down to where Austin waited. I somehow managed to get him into the backseat while praying that everything would be OK. We arrived at the Haliburton ER in record time. I ran frantically into the ER asking for a wheelchair while trying to explain in abbreviated terms what had just taken place. Dr. Dawson immediately followed me to the truck while instructing the nurse to grab a wheelchair. Austin was immediately taken into a triage room and then life as we knew it for the next 24 hours changed dramatically.

Dr. Dawson quickly assessed the situation and administered morphine immediately to alleviate the excruciating pain Austin was experiencing. He then removed the towel and I saw that the entire top of Austin's tennis shoe was gone, just fragmented pieces of leather and white fluff remained. Then the shoe was removed and my heart sank – Austin's second toe was completely gone and the toes on either side of where his second toe should have been were lacerated; I later learned that these were open fractures.

The shift change took place around 7 p.m. We had been here less than three hours and it seemed like an eternity. Dr. Ferracuti took over for Dr. Dawson and one new nurse, Shantel, came on duty while Mary, who had been there for a full shift already, stayed on to help for another full shift. With great care and concern, they worked with Austin and his special needs, to clean and dress his wounds before being transported to the fracture clinic at Peterborough Regional Health Centre.

The point of this story is two-fold. One is to enjoy the peaceful moments while you can, treasure the simple things in life and never take what you have for granted. Austin, almost 17, was so thankful for not losing his big toe (because he didn't think he could learn to walk again) and because he would still get to grow-up and have a home, a job and a family. His thankfulness in that moment made me stop and consider all the positive things in each day and to be mindful to give thanks for what we have and not dwell on what we don't have.

We want to thank all the wonderful staff at Haliburton Hospital who helped to make a very traumatic experience more bearable. We thank all the support teams who have responded to my requests for assistance after returning home Wednesday: Haliburton Health Team, Dr. Scott Coles and his staff. Special thanks to Wanita Livingstone, Healthy Kids Program; Point-in-Time, Nicole Mee, child and family therapist.

Austin wants to say to his teachers and friends at HHSS thank you for all your emails. I want each of you to know that your show of concern and caring has had an impact on Austin that will not be forgotten. We are so thankful to live in this wonderful community.

With heartfelt thanks,
April Martin

Students pay a special tribute at show

Jenn Watt
Editor

An evening focused on paying tribute was made even more meaningful Thursday night as Hal High students took time to thank their teacher, Elke Zilla, who is moving on from the school after this year.

Zilla created an atmosphere where it was OK to try new things, to put yourself out there and to follow your dreams, the students said.

Their sentiments were summed up by Zilla's husband Roland, who read a letter from her son and former student Caleb, at the Northern Lights Performing Arts Pavilion June 6.

"We grew, we learned ... we broke out of our shells," the letter said.

An emotional Elke Zilla accepted a dozen red roses – one for each year at the high school – in front of a standing ovation of students, community members and parents and applauded the Highlands for fostering creativity.

The evening not only honoured Zilla, but also friends and family of the students, who took a moment to dedicate their performances to those special to them.

Dance routines punctuated the program starting with a sentimental dance between Sophie Longo and Madeline Hopkins, who flitted across the stage to I Could Have Danced All Night.

Alana Bannister did a spot-on impression of comedian Melissa McCarthy in Pizza Eater and Target Lady while Noelle Russell brought new humour to the monologue I Ate the Divorce Papers using a Ken doll as a prop.

To top off everything else, $1,200 was raised from ticket and raffle sales to give to a local person needing a bit of help.

Afterwards, Zilla said she was "touched beyond words" by the tributes.leaving Zilla is leaving at the end of this school year. The tribute ended the Tributes Show at the Northern Lights Performing Arts Pavilion in Haliburton on June 6.

Student Peter Martin performed an anti-bullying monologue with great emotion.

Madeline Hopkins, Rebecca Hamilton and Sonya Flatman performed No Speak Americano, a Charlie Chaplin tribute.

Business

New eatery offers goods baked and battered

Angelica Blenich
Staff reporter

The name itself has people buzzing about the new dining establishment that has popped up on Haliburton's main street.

Officially opening its doors last week, Baked and Battered is a unique combination of a fish and chips restaurant and a cottage bakery.

Owned and operated by Colby Marcellus and Craig Gordon, the business was conceived out of a desire to find out what Haliburton Village needed most.

"We wanted to start a business here and we thought what does Haliburton really need?" said Gordon. "The two things that kept coming up almost constantly were Haliburton needs a really good bakery and it needs a really good fish and chips place."

When the building came up for sale the pair thought it provided the perfect location, in proximity to the downtown and the view of Head Lake, said Marcellus.

With previous experience in the restaurant industry and in management, Marcellus and Gordon are familiar with the Highlands, a place they have cottaged in for the past four years.

Two years ago the pair took over the Parkside Laundromat in Haliburton and were looking for other opportunities to make Haliburton County their full-time home.

"It's just so beautiful everywhere," said Gordon about life in the Highlands.

Located at 128 Highland St., Baked and Battered offers an upscale, northern atmosphere complete with oversized chairs, a fireplace and local artwork on display.

With parking located behind the building, the eatery is commuter friendly for both vehicles and pedestrians.

An ice-cream window at the front of the building allows customers to grab a Kawartha Dairy cone and enjoy it on one of the many large rocks perched out front, underneath an umbrella.

"In the winter snowmobilers won't have to get all undressed if they want to enjoy some fish and chips," said Marcellus.

A wide range of baked goods can be found within the walls of the eatery, made on site by Debrah Molokach, whose previous experience includes working at a bake shop owned by the Food Network's Anna Olson.

Tasty offerings include baked galette, walnut whisky brownies, croissants, Muskoka Roastery coffee and, of course, fish and chips.

Apart from delectable goodies, the owners want to offer patrons good customer service and a friendly atmosphere.

To date the feedback and reception from the community has been overwhelmingly positive.

"Hopefully we'll be here for a very long time," said Gordon.

For more information on Baked and Battered call 705-457-BAKE (2253).

Highlands figures prominently in new 'livetronica' album

Darren Lum
Staff reporter

It might seem incongruous, but the newest "livetronica" album from Ambisonic is deeply rooted in the woods of Haliburton Highlands.

The Canadian Ambisonic has been characterized as "genre-defying" and has just released its third album.

They have a powerful sound, far greater than what seems possible from its two members Erik Culp and Paul Barry. They have been influenced by rock, electronica and trip hop.

The music on their newest album Manitou is a synthesis of instrumental sounds from jazzbox guitars, drums, piano, Theremin, Stylophone, banjo, vintage bass foot pedals and synthesizers blended together with multi-track looping techniques to create a collection of swelling soundscapes with a rhythmic beat.

"It is all played by hand (and foot), no computer sequencing. If I can't play it (or Paul), it doesn't get recorded," Culp said.

Culp said he loves Haliburton the most in the dead of winter.

Named for the road where Culp lives half of the year when not in Toronto earning a living in the film industry, the album and its first track expresses the feeling he has for the area.

"Writing instrumental music, you don't have lyrics to fall back on to get those conventions of naming a title," he said. "You pick names based on the general feeling that song gives you. It's kind of like poetry in a way ... for example, the first track on the album, which is also the title of the album. That song is one that I really feel a connection to that area with because once I got up there one night and I was just so grateful to be up there that I instantly went into the studio area and without even thinking about it I played that song as it was and recorded it. That was the root guts of that song."

Erik Culp, left, and Paul Barry are the innovative duo Ambisonic, which has just released its third album, Manitou. This album is named after Manitou Road in Highlands East and inspired by the Highlands. Culp said every element in the album is inspired by Haliburton. /Photo submitted

The duo has performed in the United Kingdom, the United States and in Canada, including hotspots such as the Horseshoe Tavern in Toronto.

Culp would love to perform locally, but isn't sure what area venue would accommodate.

Besides this recent album and the first track, there are other connections to the area noticeable on previous albums.

On the duo's last album, ARP, there is a track called Wenona, among others, with obvious ties to the region, he said.

Culp disagrees with his music characterized as electronica. He prefers "livetronica" because of the variety of analog samples from the instruments he plays on the album.

Three years ago, Culp bought his 600-square-foot, open-concept house with his wife Jen LoveGrove. It sits on a hill and in the dead of winter has a view of Wenona Lake.

Culp splits his time between Toronto and his Wenona Lake retreat.

The avid camper and canoeist loved the area for its recreation possibilities before he moved here, but never envisioned the creative possibilities for him and his wife, a published novelist and poet.

Now he cannot imagine a life without his secluded getaway.

"I think every individual needs their Haliburton or a version of that. Everybody needs something like that to get away and decompress, re-collect their thoughts and have time for introspective contemplation," he said.

You can buy their album online on iTunes.

Fitzgerald family embarks on musical tour, kicks off in Haliburton

Angelica Blenich
Staff reporter

The Fitzgeralds have two favourite F words.

Fiddling and family.

Hailing from Bancroft, the family of six love to be on stage together, performing with their fiddles and dancing along.

On June 15 the Fitzgeralds will be performing in Haliburton as their band Everything Fitz at the Northern Lights Performing Arts Pavilion, with special guest Nate Douglas.

Comprised of parents Paddy and Pam, the band is rounded out with their four children, Pat, Julie, Kerry and Tom.

No strangers to the stage, the Fitzgeralds have had a lengthy career with their fiddles, particularly Julie and Tom, who have won many step-dancing competitions, including the Canadian Grand Master Fiddle Championships.

"The kids were introduced to the fiddle contest and step dance circuit when they were young ... they got interested in that and all started step dancing shortly after that and competing," said Paddy.

The family's musical interests go back to all four children taking piano lessons at an early age, before learning fiddling.

"The band sort of evolved from that," said Paddy, 52, whose wife has a musical background. "People saw us all together and we started playing at small things, then out of town, out of province and then out of country."

It wasn't long before the children became experts in their field, learning all there was to know about step dancing.

"The four siblings all dance ... they're phenomenal. It's without a doubt the highlight [of the show]."

For many the idea of touring and traveling with their entire family is an unpleasant one, but not for the Fitzgeralds.

Spending all their time together, whether it be on a bus, in hotel rooms or on the stage, the family members are a cohesive unit.

"It's so much fun to do with your family," said Paddy. "My kids are amazing kids. We have so much fun together. We just enjoy doing it, they're a bunch of goof balls."

The experience is fantastic, even with its challenges, said the father.

The two youngest children will be taking a year off from university to tour, while Pam takes a hiatus from her teaching job.

Tour stops include British Columbia, Florida, California and an Irish music cruise in the Caribbean.

The Haliburton show will be filmed for a live DVD/CD recording, which the family is hoping to have ready to take on the road with them.

In existence for about 12 years, the Fitzgerald band has performed in the Highlands before, many years ago.

All six members are musically inclined; Pam plays the piano, Paddy the electric bass and Pat the drums, while the youngest three fiddle.

Douglas, who has toured with Natalie MacMaster as a guitarist and vocalist, will be providing vocals for the Haliburton show.

"He's phenomenal," said Paddy.

Those who attend the upcoming show can expect to see the six musicians perform traditional Celtic tunes, along with jazz, Texas swing, bluegrass and novelty numbers.

Some surprises in the show include Julie playing two fiddles at the same time, one in each hand, while dancing.

Citing his wife as the "driving force" of the band, Paddy can't imagine the family tour coming to an end anytime soon, especially for the children, who have a strong interest in music.

"We all enjoy performing, it's kind of a high," he said. "When you're in front of people it comes alive."

Tickets for the June 15 show are $15 in advance and available at Cranberry Cottage in Haliburton and Harvest Moon in Bancroft.

Tickets can be purchased for $20 at the door prior to the show.

For more information on the tour and the band, visit www.everythingfitz.ca.

The Fitzgerald family, who hail from Bancroft, will soon be embarking on a North American tour, showcasing their fiddling and musical expertise. The family will be performing at the Northern Lights Performing Arts Pavilion on June 15. Family members include parents Paddy and Pam, and children Pat, Julie, Kerry and Tom.

Special Olympics brings out smiles on cloudy day

Angelica Blenich
Staff reporter

It's one of the highlights of their year. On June 5 Haliburton Highlands Secondary School hosted the eighth annual Special Olympics, an idea conceived by faculty member Bruce Griffith.

Nine schools from throughout Trillium Lakelands District School Board, including J.D. Hodgson Elementary School, Archie Stouffer Elementary School and Stuart Baker Elementary School, participated in the daylong event.

Kicking off with the parade of champions, the Special Olympics included 100 student athletes, 100 coaches and supporters and 35 HHSS student leaders, who helped organize, motivate and provide support wherever needed, said Griffith.

The friendly competition includes a 50-metre race, 200-metre race, ball toss, long jump, a relay race, an obstacle course and parachute games.

And in these Olympics, everyone is a winner.

"A lot of firsts are given out," said Griffith, adding every participant gets a medal or a ribbon.

Griffith created the event eight years ago with the help of a former HHSS faculty member.

The event's success over the years can be seen on the smiles of participants and heard from the cheers that line the track.

HHSS students came out to cheer on the participants, who marched with their teammates in the parade of champions, adding an enthusiastic, positive energy to the occasion.

"Lots of people look forward to this," said Griffith. "It's the highlight of the year for them."

Devolin announces $3,000 for events in Haliburton County

Local MP Barry Devolin, on behalf of the Honourable James Moore, Minister of Canadian Heritage and Official Languages, announced a total of $3,200 for three separate Celebrate Canada projects in Haliburton County.

The successful applicants are:

- Oxtongue Lake Community Centre - $500;
- Gooderham Community Action Group - $1,700, and;
- Algonquin Gateway Tourist and Business Association in Harcourt - $1,000

The money will be used to help cover some of the costs associated with putting on a celebration of our nation's birthday. All three events plan such things as children's activities, live entertainment and fireworks.

"Celebrate Canada activities have become a tradition offering Canadians the opportunity to share their pride in their country," said Devolin. "The success of these events is due, in great part, to the volunteer members who work tirelessly to ensure each Canadian has an opportunity to enjoy local celebrations."

"I'd like to thank Melissa Alfano of the Township of Algonquin Highlands, Cecil Ryall of the Gooderham

Community Action Group and Lyle Donaldson of the Algonquin Gateway Tourist and Business Association for their hard work and successful funding applications," stated Devolin. "Having the opportunity to thank people for their hard work and commitment to making our communities better is one of the most rewarding things that I do as your MP."

"Canada Day is an opportunity to gather in our communities, from coast to coast to coast, and to proudly celebrate all we have in common," said Devolin.

OPP not soliciting funds for its community bear program

The Ontario Provincial Police has received a number of inquiries from Ontario residents asking about police organizations calling to solicit funds for teddy bears.

While many OPP officers are involved in worthy charities on their own time, the OPP is advising the public that it does not solicit funds from members of the public for its Community Bear Program or any other OPP program. The OPP's Community Bear Program is sponsored by Aviva Canada Inc.

Through the sponsorship, Aviva Canada Inc. provides OPP officers with black and white teddy bears they give to traumatized children they encounter when they respond to incidents such as motor vehicle collisions.

The OPP is reminding people to verify the legitimacy of any organization that calls to solicit funds from the public.

Workshop to help identify elder abuse

World Elder Abuse Awareness Day highlights a serious issue affecting seniors in our community and it is the perfect opportunity to educate yourself and others, discuss the issue, and to become involved within the community. Raising awareness is the first step to stopping elder abuse from occurring.

Elder abuse refers to any actions that harms an older person and can jeopardize the person's health or welfare including physical, emotional, financial or sexual abuse, a violation of rights, and neglect. It can be a single or repeated act and it can occur in any relationship where there is an expectation of trust or where a person is in a position of power or authority. Although we hate to believe it, the abuse of older adults is most often perpetrated by someone known to the victim such as a family member or friend. The most common form of abuse suffered by seniors is financial abuse.

As you can well imagine, elder abuse can have a serious impact on the individual's health and well-being. It can be a major contributor to stress, which could trigger more serious health problems such as high blood pressure and it can also have an impact the individual's emotional health causing depression or anxiety.

Recognizing the signs of elder abuse is very important, in its prevention and in helping elders who are victims. This can include a person telling you that they are being harmed, showing signs of depression and/or anxiety, becoming socially withdrawn and isolating themselves, having unexplained physical injuries, lacking food, clothing and other necessities. They may also show changes in their hygiene and nutrition, and suddenly have trouble meeting financial obligations.

You can help prevent elder abuse by educating yourself on the issue and understanding the rights of older adults. Older adults who are concerned about this issue can take a number of preventative steps including: attending education sessions and seminars on the topic, maintaining contact with friends and loved ones, remaining socially involved in the community, and appointing a power of attorney that you trust.

With the increasing senior population we need to be more and more vigilant in our lives, learning how to prevent abuse and being watchful of our friends, neighbours, and seniors in our community. Elder abuse affects one of the most vulnerable sectors of our society and it is our responsibility to be aware.

On June 18 at 2 p.m. there will be an elder abuse awareness workshop taking place in the drop-in centre at Community Care Haliburton County 83 Maple Ave. in Haliburton. You will learn the different types and signs of elder abuse, and how to recognize that abuse is occurring. We will look at different scenarios and work together on appropriate responses that you might have as a volunteer, friend, family member, or total stranger. Your legal responsibility to report elder abuse and moral/ethical responsibilities will be discussed. A variety of handouts will be provided along with information on agencies/organizations that you may find helpful when supporting a person who indicates that they are the victim of abuse. The workshop will be presented by Karen Anderson, elder abuse services co-ordinator for Kawartha Lakes and Haliburton County. In honour of World Elder Abuse Awareness Day, Community Care will be hosting an afternoon tea with goodies that will take place after the workshop at 3:30 p.m. Please contact Community Care at 705 457 2941 to register for the workshop and/or the tea.

Online marketplace exposes Haliburton to the world

This year marks the 10th anniversary of the Arts Council-Haliburton Highlands. Over the next few months, the Haliburton Echo/Minden Times will feature a series of articles that will highlight the organization's successes and the development of the arts in the Highlands. Enjoy!

Part of the Arts Council's mission is to provide a strong voice for the arts in Haliburton County and serve as a catalyst for community economic development through the arts.

In April of 2012, the Arts Council celebrated a new initiative it helped launch known as MadeInHaliburton.ca. An online business owned by local residents Don and Marie Gage, MadeInHaliburton.ca falls directly in line with what the Arts Council, a not-for-profit organization, works hard to do: support Haliburton County artists.

"One of the objectives of doing this, in my mind, was to tell the world that the Haliburton Highlands was an arts community," said Marie in a recent interview. "It was important to me to have the Haliburton name in there."

Both art appreciators, the Gages thought about how they could take on such a large-scale project. One of their first steps was to approach the board of the Arts Council.

"They were positive about the idea," said Marie. "They had some thoughts of launching a site themselves."

The Arts Council agreed to enter a partnership with the Gages and apply for a grant through the Ministry of Tourism and Culture's Cultural Strategic Investment Fund. It was successful and the Arts Council was awarded $47,600.

"Because it was a for-profit, non-profit partnership that they were looking at funding – which makes economic development sense in the arts – it seemed like an ideal project to pitch."

The work to develop the website started in the fall of 2011.

"We knew it was going to be a lot of work. I think there was a lot more committee meeting time that was required to get it going than I think any of us had predicted in the beginning."

However, since this was a joint venture, it was necessary to review all the fine details.

"I think that the people who sat on the committee from the Arts Council side spent a tremendous amount of time helping to make decisions about which companies to contract with to do what pieces of the work."

Marie said the project wouldn't have been possible without the Arts Council's involvement.

"Without the grant the Arts Council was able to secure and without the work of the committee... it just wouldn't exist."

On MadeInHaliburton.ca visitors will discover a variety of art, concert tickets and gift certificates. Currently, the website side features 585 products and includes the work of 56 artists.

"I think we've learned a lot about what sells online and what doesn't," she said, adding that tickets and books have proven to be good sellers. "Visual art is selling at a slower rate, but it is selling."

Marie said it takes a minimum of 18 months for a website to really get noticed.

"We're not at that point yet, and three to five years is what it takes to build a business."

Past sales show that the site has attracted global attention.

"We've shipped pieces, including visual art, to Scotland, the Netherlands and California. In those three cases I know for sure that they [the customers] had never bought anything in the Highlands before."

The project with the Arts Council officially came to an end in September; however, the partnership continues.

"There is a still a committee of the Arts Council that helps to jury new artists that are coming on the website."

As for the future, Marie hopes to increase traffic to the site as well as the number of sales.

"We're focusing on trying to build the brand and get the name MadeInHaliburton out there, and get people comfortable from buying from that brand."

She added that the project is "a perfect example of how the Arts Council can accomplish things to advance the arts in the county by doing something that could not be done by one artist alone, yet benefits many."

To my valued customers, Every effort has been made since purchasing Hyland Taxi in 2003 to successfully provide safe, well maintained vehicles and reliable service while maintaining reasonable rates which have increased only twice in the past 10 years.

Rising operational costs, parts and maintenance, continuously rising fuel and insurance costs, as well as drivers' difficulties due to a tremendous increase in living expenses have left no alternatives but to raise taxi rates effective June 13. A seniors' discount will be implemented to assist those on lower fixed incomes. Even with this increase Hyland Taxi's rates remain lower, if not the lowest compared to other rates throughout the province. Hyland Taxi provides 24 hour/day service, never closing. Many smaller communities similar to ours do not provide the same. Your understanding in this matter is greatly appreciated.

Community garden grows in popularity

Wilberforce

Hilda Clark

448-2018

Considerable interest is being shown this year in the local community garden. It began last year in a section of the property on which the new library is slowly being constructed.

The new location, closer to the centre of the village, seems to be quite popular as more folks are more into growing their own vegetables.

Congratulations to the many Wilberforce Elementary

School students who participated in a recent track and field meet at the High School in Haliburton. Of note was the accomplishment of Lexi Rogers who placed third overall in the bantam girls division.

As the school year draws to a close the students look forward to special year end field trips, to their year end assembly and especially for the Grade 8 class their graduation ceremony.

Attending the annual general meeting of District 18 Retired Teachers of Ontario on June 4 were members from across Haliburton County and the City of Kawartha Lakes. It convened in the main hall of the Haliburton campus of Sir Sandford Fleming College.

A meeting of Wilberforce Curling Club members will be held at the club on Thursday, June 13 at 7 p.m.

The Point In Time organization will again be operating weekly day camps throughout the county this summer.

In Wilberforce it will be held at the LWMC July 8 to 12.

At the Gooderham Community Centre it will be the week of July 15 to 19.

It will be at the Cardiff Community Centre July 22 to 26.

The camps run Monday to Friday from 9 to 4. It costs $30 per child weekly. Schools have pamphlets about these camps.

Spring craft and bake sale brings many to West Guilford

West Guilford

Eleanor Cooper

754-2278

The West Guilford Community Centre came alive on Saturday, June 8 with dozens of folk arriving to view, buy or taste the goods offered at the spring craft and bake sale.

Nancy Brink was in charge of arranging for the vendors to set up. She also undertook the landscaping around the centre, complete with gorgeous purple irises. Nancy's table was replete with her numerous jars of jellies, jams and relishes.

Plants were also a drawing card at her table.

Kay Morrison was on hand at the door to sell the West Guilford cookbooks and tickets for the draw on July 1 Canada Day celebrations. First prize is two Canadian-made recycled plastic Adirondack chairs from Cottage Country Log Cabin and $500 meat order from the West Guilford Shopping Centre and barbecue. Second prize is a Canadian-made plastic bear bench from Cottage Country Log Cabin.

Draw to be held on Monday, Sept. 2, 2013.

Other tables included Heather Harrington's Mary Kay display, Janis Cox's crafted fabric turtles and her own book of a turtle story that includes how to show children the craft for themselves.

Ken and Sylvia Kreller's large display of Rawleigh products was attractive as well for the frilled scarves at Sylvia's end.

Ren Higgin's knits, Diane Blanchard's knits, Marina Maughan and Mary Pearsell's sewn and crocheted items and Su Taylor with quilted and sewn articles were all attractively displayed.

Maple Lake United Church outdid themselves in scrumptious baking and Shirley Johnston and Ila Griffin stood at the kitchen counter for sale of snacks and tea or coffee. All delicious.

Ann Harris was on-hand with her finely designed gift cards as well as her own books. Joyce Emmerson sold her husband Brad's bowls and some of her own flower arrangements.

In Praise of Wolves kept the memory alive of Sharon Lawrence's husband, Ron Lawrence, who distinguished himself as a conservationist, naturalist and author.

Debbie Everitt's goat's milk soaps were another display which attracted much attention.

Jewelry tables by Ray and Chris Johnston and Wired on Beads by Marylyn Lewis also drew much interest for their beauty and original design.

Diane Peacock's table was fragrant with lightly scented candles, which she makes herself.

Jan and Rene Legemaate completed the set of vendors' tables with their exquisite display of old china, Chinese vases, limoges and intricately wrought embroidered cotton and linens.

Huge apologies for misinformation about the last week's names in the Jack and Jill shower.

Another time I will check with the people involved themselves.

I am truly sorry for the upset involved.

Euchre on June 4: high - Ruby Parcells and Doug Davison; low - Perry and Kay Morrison; most lone hands - Cliff Davison and Peter Laplante.

Happy birthday for Myra Marshall, celebrated on Friday, June 8.
